Why we love it...

Blue Point Juniper is a cultivar of the highly variable Chinese Juniper, which can be found growing on almost every continent in many forms, from groundcovers to large trees. These cold hardy, drought tolerant evergreens make exemplary garden foundations with their medium texture and solid color that create a feeling of stability in any landscape.

Blue Point Juniper is one of the few Juniper cultivars that has interesting enough structure and form to stand alone as a garden accent. It develops into a tall, densely branched blue-green cone that really stands out against brighter or darker green backgrounds. Groups of Blue Point Junipers can also be used to create a thick, tall screen or a sturdy windbreak.

Lydia says: Keep those clippers in the holster! Blue Point Juniper maintains its "Christmas Tree" form with little to no pruning.
